

To whom it may concern,

I am a United States Sailor. I do my job willingly and faithfully. Part of doing my job means I could get blown to smithereens, sucked down to a watery grave or just plain shot in the head for wearing a US Navy uniform while in a foreign port.

I did not sign on with the United States Navy to see neither my government nor it's agencies serve the interests of the litigious movie industry or the monopolies of the cable television industry.

Broadcast flags and involuntary implementation of copy-protection are a clear and concise violation of the Fair Use Act of 1988.

The issue is clear. If I cannot pay someone to stand my watch while the torpedos are coming in, then YOU cannot allow yourselves to be influenced by special interests who seek to violate my rights by donning the false mantle of legitimacy.

My Fair Use rights are in jeopardy so I ask that you protect them, as delineated in the Fair Use Act.

Thank you for your consideration in this matter.

Respecfully,

John A Antilety IT2(SW) USN
